And the secretary and Senor Capote expressed their views most freely; and the exchange of suggestions and replies were very interesting and profitable. The intervention proposition was the most discussion, and as this had received much discussion in the convention at Havana, the Cubans were familiar with all phases of construction that might be placed upon it. The delegates of the convention took more or less part in the discussion, and their

It is understood that the Cubans are impressed with the desire on the part of this government to deal fairly by Cuba, and the belief is expressed that the delegation will take home favorable reports of our intentions.

The delegation made no complaint of the present military government of General Wood. After the conference the delegates called on General Wood and

The Richmond, Tomorrow Secretary Root will entertain the delegates at a luncheon. General Wood expects to leave here tomorrow night, going to New York, thence to Cuba. It is known when the Cubans will return here. The belief is expressed that the business which brought them here would be concluded at the meeting tomorrow.

BANQUET TO CUBANS.

State Dinner is Given in Their Honor by the President.

Washington, April 25.—The members of the Cuban constitutional committee were entertained at a state dinner given in their honor by the president at the White House. The guests invited to meet them were thoroughly repre-senative of the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the government and included members of the cabinet, senators and representatives who have been prominent in their discussion of insular affairs, justices of the supreme court and officers of the army and navy.

The dinner was limited exclusively to gentlemen, and covers were set for forty-seven. The guests assembled in the east room, where the formal introductions were made, after which the Early proceeded to the store dining room, where the table, set in the shape of a double "T," was handsomely decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and ferns. Red and white roses were the principal flowers. The centerpiece was a basket of red hyacinths on a bed of ferns, flanked on either side by a basket of red hyacinths and two large, white roses. Large baskets of tulips with a profusion of ferns and carnations were placed at the ends of the table.

At the plate of each guest was a boutonniere of carnations. The portraits of the guests, in a plain, white, oval frame, were the main decorations. The center of the table was decorated with a large floral display in the red, white and green pinks was confined to almost all the other decorations. The centerpiece plants, colons and maiden hair ferns, string orchestras furnished the

Among those who sat down to dinner were: The president, secretary of state, secretary of the treasury, secretary of war, attorney general, postmaster general, secretary of the interior, secretary of agriculture, secretary to the president, Dr. Capote, president of the Cuban constitutional committee; Dr. Tamayo, secretary of state and government; Senor Llorente, associate justice of the supreme court of Cuba; Betancourt, civil governor, provincial.

should be taken to bring about even greater harmony between the United States and the people of the island. The objections made convinced some of the congresses that the tariff is the key to the situation, and the opinion is expressed that if sufficient concessions are made by this government in the tariff, the other features of the Platt amendment may be adjusted to the common satisfaction of the United States and the Cubans. The Cuban delegation is so strong in its conviction that the Platt amendment is for absolute independence, and contends that Cuba should be placed on an equal footing with this country and the other nations of the world, in the recognition of the right of its existence as a sovereign nation.

It was evident, however, from the tone of the discussion, that the Cuban would look to the United States for moral support in the event of unfriendly manifestations by European countries. Notably was the opinion to this effect in case those European nations holding the obligations of Cuba issued to defray the cost of the insurrection against Spain should attempt to collect the money guaranteed by them.

Tomorrow the delegation will have what is expected to be a concluding interview with Secretary Root, at which General Wood will be present. If Gen-

A CALCULATION.

HEN you are ready to buy, stop and compute the cost of the soap used by your household in a day, a week or a month, and for the slight difference in price you will never forego the pleasure of using the purest soap made, that is, Ivory Soap.

It is the most inexpensive of pure soaps. You need no knowledge of chemistry to realize this purity, use it and you will know. It floats.
